Edison Electric Institute's National Key Accounts Workshop: The One-Stop Resource for Your Utility and Energy Management Needs

EEI's bi-annual National Key Accounts Workshop is the venue for your company to learn about the latest energy opportunities, help influence public energy policy, and establish the business connections necessary to plot a stable course in today's energy marketplace. The Workshop offers:

- A time-tested environment for conducting business and exchanging ideas among electric and gas companies and their valued multi-site energy users
- The one-stop avenue for buyers to meet and network with sellers and distributors of energy and related products and services
- Expert information on the latest energy legislation, regulatory trends, and business restructuring activities that will impact your energy concerns
- The place to learn about new technologies and energy practices that will improve your bottomline and the environment

Find the Professional Associates Needed to Develop Viable Energy Partnerships

- Your regulated utility representatives that specialize in handling billing, reliability, and service connection issues. (Don't wait for a crisis to find the right person to call!)
- Energy efficiency and demand response experts
- Electricity, renewable, and gas suppliers
- EEI Trade Allies that provide the products and services to meet the unique needs of North-American, multi-site organizations

Director of Energy and Environmental Services, Staples

The Edison Electric Institute (EEI) is the association of U.S. shareholder-owned electric companies. It's members serve 95 percent of the ultimate customers in the shareholder-owned segment of the industry, and represent approximately 70 percent of the U.S. electric power industry.
